The University Act (the “Act”) is the governing legislation for The University of British Columbia (the “University”).

The Act provides for the University’s bicameral governance structure, with a division of powers among four bodies: the Board of Governors, the Okanagan Senate, the Vancouver Senate and the Council of Senates. The Board of Governors manages the University’s administration, property and business affairs, and has representation from each of the University’s Vancouver and Okanagan campuses. Each University campus has a Senate with comparable categories of members and a similar balance between elected and non-elected members. The Senates administer the University’s academic matters. Under section 3.1 of the Act the Board of Governors has specified which parts of the University the Okanagan Senate and the Vancouver Senate have academic governance responsibility over. The University’s Council of Senates reflects the need to have a body with membership from each of the Senates and a mandate to establish common University positions on academic matters.

The table that follows sets out the allocation of governance responsibility amongst the Board of Governors, the Senates and the Council of Senates under the Act.

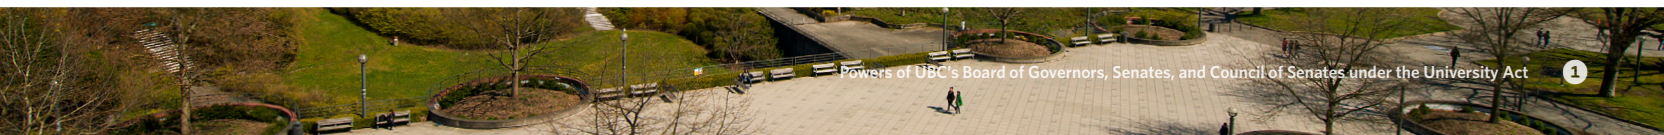

When reading the table:

- “Senate” means either the Senate for the University’s Okanagan campus or the Senate for the University’s Vancouver campus, depending upon the context; and
- ☒ indicates that approval of a body is required.
